Founder
Marshall Faulk Foundation

Marshall William Faulk is a former football running back who played in the National Football League. He is currently an analyst for NFL Total Access on the NFL Network. He played football for SDSU, the only school who pegged him for the offensive backfield. He was drafted by the Indianapolis Colts in 1994. It was during this time that he began his foundation, whose mission is to improve the quality of life and increase opportunities for inner city youth. To date, the Marshall Faulk Foundation has provided more than $1,000,000 in grants as well as hands-on involvement to programs benefiting inner-city youth and underprivileged children in Indianapolis, St. Louis, New Orleans, and San Diego. Following the 1998 season Faulk was traded to the St. Louis Rams. He retired from football in 2007. In 2011, Marshall was named to the NFL Hall of Fame, the only Aztec player inducted to date. Marshall is serving his first term on The Campanile Foundation board and participates on the Athletics Committee. He is a lifetime Alumni Association member.
