Student Tip!
Can’t sit for too long doing the same thing? That may be a good thing! Research indicates that those who mix up their practice perform better. A study by Rohrer and Taylor (2010) showed that 4th graders with mixed problem sets in math performed better than those who repeatedly practiced the same type of problem. Try mixing up your own class work -- read about it, talk about it, write about it, diagram it -- for maximum success!
