KARIN WINNER
Retired Editor
The San Diego Union-Tribune

Karin Winner retired in December 2009 after working for the Union-Tribune Publishing Co. for 33 years, first as a reporter and then in various editing positions. Winner spearheaded the merger of the Tribune and the Union in 1992, and took over as the top editor in February 1995. She is a great-granddaughter of the co-founder of what became the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain. Her memberships include the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Women in Communication, California Newspaper Publisher Association, Associated Press Managing Editors Association, The Watchdog Institute board of directors, International Women’s Forum, and National Society of Professional Journalists. In the local community, she is a member of the Downtown San Diego Rotary, Wednesday Club, and The Bishop’s School. The USC School of Journalism named Karin outstanding alumna of 1993. In 1996, the San Diego Press Club named her one of its Headliners of the Year. In 2008, she was named The Bishops School’s Distinguished Alumni Award.

Karen is a member of The Campanile Foundation’s Executive Committee and Nominating and Organizing Committee.
